Heartfelt plea for Idol fame

GO CASEY!

School's in for Casey's Idol victory

By MICHELLE CAZZULINO
 THE sign outside the school boldly hails Casey Donovan as the "Australian Idol already".
 Inside, spirits are running high as students and staff discuss the possibility of the 16-year-old winning the grand final of the TV talent show.
 Casey completed Years 7 to 10 at Condell Park High School, where her older brother Mitchell is now completing his HSC.

Deputy principal Ralph Moore said Casey's success had been the talk of the school over the past couple of months.
 "It's very special... we'd love to get her out here and celebrate with her. You can see the reactions on Casey's face and the judges' faces and we share that," he said.
 For some of Casey's closest friends at the school her musical accomplishments are nothing new.

 Ruby Baxter, Cassie Renard and Thao Nguyen have known Casey for between four and five years, and say she has always been a star.
 "She's going to win, and she's going to win World Idol too," Ruby predicted.

AUSTRALIAN Idol finalists Casey Donovan and Anthony Callea each delivered stirring renditions of the sure-fire hit Listen With Your Heart, but only one of them will sing it again.
 The song, which will be released as a single by the winning contestant, was unveiled last night in the final performance show of the series.
 Both have recorded the Diane Warren penned track and spent all of Saturday shooting respective video clips at Fox Studios to prepare for either of them winning.
 Only one will get to sing it when he or she is declared the winner on Sunday night.
 The song, which was recorded by Celine Dion in 1998, was everything we've come to expect of an Idol single — big power notes, Idol moments and uplifting lyrics about faith, hope, and finding your way in the dark.
 Last night's show was the final opportunity for the pair to secure rescence and Take Me As I Am by Vanessa Amorosi.

 Asked last night what victory would mean, Casey said: "Half would be for me and the other half would be to help out other people who are less fortunate."
 Melbourne's pocket-rocket Anthony delivered '80s power ballad Glorious Love by Peter Cetera and Craig David's Walking Away.
 They now enter a week of intense publicity commitments and rehearsals for the grand finale at the Opera House on Sunday night.
 They will perform in a medley with the other 10 finalists, but they won't sing solo again until the winner is declared.
 Confidential is urging all Sydney-siders to get behind Casey.
 You have all week to vote. SMS "Casey" to 19 10 10 or call 1812 55 55 62.

IDOL VERDICT
Our girl's first into the final

Sydney versus Melbourne ... Idol finalists Casey Donovan and Anthony Callea last night

Laughter, songs and a pair of toy rats

- Casey Donovan, 16, is from Bass Hill
- She was convinced to go to the audition by her mother Tracy Donovan and stepfather Norm Axford, after refusing to try out several

- times for the popular show
- She has a pair of toy rats everywhere with her – but her mother refuses to allow her to get a real one
- Her first audition song was

- Kasey Chambers' A Million Tears, and her musical idol is Kurt Cobain
- The motto she lives by is: Laughter is the key
- Her favourite Idol from last year was Paulini

Casey's bid to be first girl Idol

By GEMMA JONES

SHE can belt out a song like the best of the pop divas – now a teenager from western Sydney who almost didn't enter Australian Idol has a shot at making it big in the music industry.

Casey Donovan, 16, of Bass Hill, had said reaching the final would be the highlight of her life. Last night that dream came true.

But she faces some stiff competition from south of the border, with the final battle between Sydney and Melbourne for the Idol crown.

She will challenge Anthony Callea, 21, of Melbourne, for a lucrative recording contract and a shot at being the first female Australian Idol.

Courtney Murphy was voted off the competition last night, which has proved a ratings winner for Network Ten.

Donovan feared her journey would end prematurely after her performance on Sunday night earned her harsh criticism from two judges.

But the viewing public put her over the line.

"As soon as [the judges made their comments], I thought I'm gone, I'm dead," she told The Daily Telegraph.

"I got up and they said my name and I almost started crying.

"This has made my life. This means so much for my sake and my family and the support they have given me. I'll be lost for words for a couple of days."

She was still shaking in shock at the announcement minutes after she came off stage.

There was enormous support for her in the crowd, with a huge group of people from her Sydney-based fan club in the audience at Global Studios in North Ryde.

Callea said before making it through the first audition for the program, he was teaching music and playing gigs and never thought his life could be transformed in the way that it has been.

"If somebody told me six months ago I probably would've laughed," he said.

He agreed with Donovan that the shock of getting through to the final round was immense.

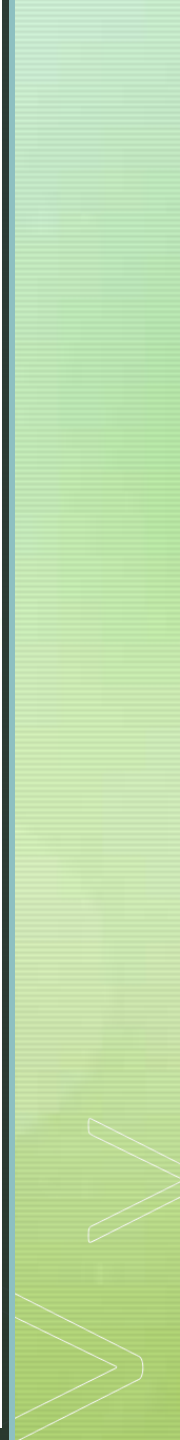

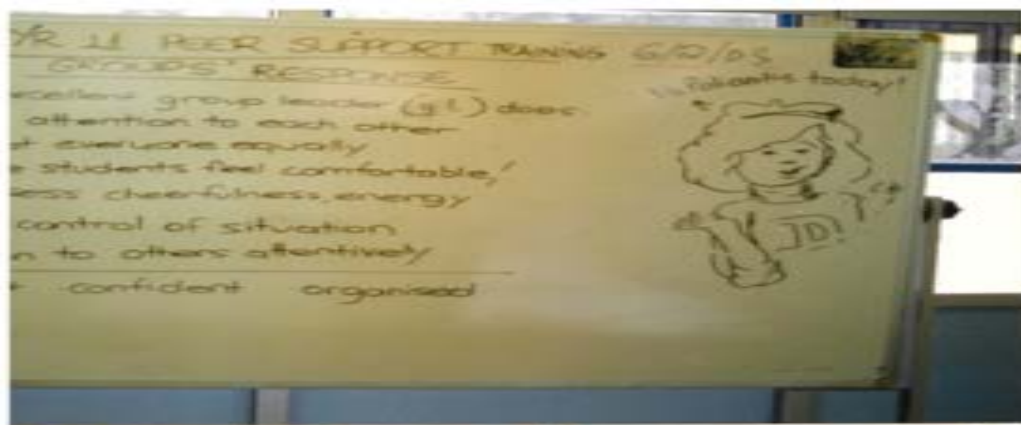

"I'm totally numb. I feel like I'm going to throw up," the excited 21-year-old, who gave a rousing rendition of Bridge Over Troubled Water on Sunday, said.

Callea said being on Idol had changed his life.

Murphy closed the show with a rendition of Paul McCartney's My Love.

The grand final will be held at the Opera House on November 21.
